This is a gripping story of two young people who invent a time probe and consequently develop a new theory about time. Rather than time remaining a fixed constant, this book postulates that time is actually slowing down, changing according to the Theory of Relativity in relation to where we are in time. A fascinating, imaginative, and provocative journey through the big questions of life. David Wilkinson, St John's College. It is an immediate page-turner with a compelling narrative and imaginative story line. Jonathan Aitken
